

OFFICER'S FORUM

Kingdom
Senescha

Greetings Meridians!

Welcome to TRMs Boru and Dierdre--may They reign in happiness and prosperity! It's also time to start begging for bids for Spring 2006 (Coronation, Crown, RUM/A&S)...if you have questions about the bid process, sites, what's expected in general, please contact Dame Fianna...

Please notice in the attached law changes (read in Court, rapidly, at RUM July 16, 2005), that Royal University and A&S have combined for 2006--the first weekend in June will be A&S/RUM (or RUM/A&S)--everyone with questions about classes, etc. please contact Mistress Winalee and Mistress Sigy Ingadottir (elevated to the Pelican at RUM--congratulations!!).

And spekaing of Meridian Law: you should all, well those of you with valid memberships, receive a new copy (including the RUM changes) of MKL in the mail soon (if not already).

In September, I will see many of you at Grand Tourney, Meridian Coronation, and...who knows where else (I'm sneaky like that sometimes).

For Meridies,
Gwen

Earl Marshal

Greetings stalwart warriors

From Earl Marshal etcetera, etcetera,

Right then, lots of business this month, the real deal, the big thing. Changes in the wind and all that. Hold onto your caps and bonnets this is earth-shattering news. Are you ready for this?

Meridies is now in line with the rest of the Society in regards to the age for participation in Armored Combat. Specifically, 16 and 17 year old fighters may participate with adults at fighter practice (or pickups at events) and may go on to authorize as an "adult" fighter. In case you're wondering how and when this came about let me remind you that the Meridian experiment for 16 and 17 year olds started during Sir Griffin's memorable tenure, and has been ongoing for almost two years now. Some of you have probably already fought minors on the field whether you know it or not. So this shouldn't come as a major surprise for anyone (I hope, well not really, but I'm assuming the best anyhow).

So, if you're an attentive group knight marshal you're probably asking yourself right now, what about waivers? Good question! New waivers that apply only towards 16 and 17 year olds fighting with adults are available on the kingdom website. Go get a copy now. That being said, the same waiver applies towards the same age group participating in rapier combat.

Also take out your copy of the Meridian Marshal's Handbook and make the following change under Section IV Authorizations, subsection A Armored Combat Authorization, item 1, line 1 strike through the words "eighteen (18)" and replace with "sixteen (16)".

Lastly, if you're still the attentive group knight marshal I expect you all are (and I keep my fingers crossed) you should make note that there is one crucial difference in armor standards between adult and minor combatants. Minor age combatants of 16 and 17 years of age must still have sternum protection incorporated in their armor, just as participants in the Dragon class youth combat program. So how does an inspecting marshal know to check? We are currently working out a system to mark the authorization cards of minors to designate them as such, and that should clue you in to inspect for sternum protection when they show their card. Start checking cards and fighters closely!!!

If you're sixteen or seventeen and you want to swing rattan with the big dogs (yo) now's your chance. However, if you're not interested in the big leagues and want to play in the minors a couple more years to garner experience or such, you can still take part in the Youth combat program through the Dragon class. Or, if you're really industrious (full of vim and vinegar and all that) you can take part in both programs by authorizing in each. To which I say, are you out of your Mesopotamian mind? But then I'm not sixteen or seventeen anymore. Not in the least. Way not. Way, way not.

Crikey, I'm old.

In Service to Crown and Kingdom,
Sir Artos Ancilus
